Increasing Affordable Housing Opportunities for All

The temptation to spend and borrow money is everywhere. Keeping your finances in good shape can be a challenge. Most people who use credit do not always have a clear idea of how it works or how getting in too much debt can lead to serious financial problems. Once you understand the importance of credit, you will be able to start working toward financial stability.

The monthly workshops educate the consumers on the following:

- Understanding and implementing good money management
- Setting financial goals
- Repairing or establishing credit
- Setting up a spending plan

Individual Counseling covers the following:

- Goal setting and planning for the future
- Preparing a spending plan
- Working with available income
- A look into personal spending habits

Credit affects all aspects of life; ability to pay rent, get or maintain a job, make payments on time, open bank accounts, and purchase a home.

FHAS credit report counseling offers the following:

- The importance of good credit
- Establishing and maintaining good credit
- Avoiding credit traps
- Restoring your credit
